Learn what it takes to prevent border delays, minimize importation costs and optimize supply chain structures in the world's leading markets

U.S. companies importing into Brazil, India and China face unique and complex tax and customs challenges and must learn how to navigate each local regulatory environment to maintain compliant customs operations.

With global operations transforming trade compliance into a competitive advantage, customs and trade executives must remain current on customs requirements and regulations in today's largest markets. Brazilian, Indian and Chinese customs regulations are exceptionally complex and companies willing to succeed in these markets must keep track of the latest developments and regulatory changes. Failure to be informed can result in border delays, enforcement actions, aggressive penalties and missed production and delivery deadlines.

Now in its 5th successful year, ACI's Advanced Forum on Global Customs Compliance presents a revamped conference agenda that focuses on the customs insights you need to succeed in Brazil, India and China. Hear corporate perspectives on how to comply with Brazilian, Indian and Chinese Customs requirements and learn how industry leaders are developing tailored approaches to improve import operations in each country. Benefit from the expertise of senior attorneys from India, Brazil and China and ask your most pressing customs questions.

Highlights from the program will include:

- How to expedite the RADAR registration process in Brazil
- Assessing and minimizing import taxes into Brazil
- Addressing customs issues with Indian government officials and the DRI
- Coping with hurdles to efficient logistics and expediting customs clearance in India
- Applying China's country of origin and marking standards
- Overcoming challenges of building relationships with Chinese officials
- Optimizing customs bonded operations in China

Whether your company is weighing the pros and cons of importing into Brazil, India or China or has existing import operations, you can't afford to miss the only event focused on customs regulations in the world's leading markets. This must-attend event will fill up quickly, so register now by calling 1-888-224-2480; by faxing your registration form to 1-877-927-1563; or by registering online at www.AmericanConference.com/globalcustoms.
